Its delicious melodies, poignant harmonies, and restless momentum make it one of the composer's most beloved works. Composing in a burst of energy, Robert Schumann completed his Symphony No. 1 in just four days. Nicknamed "Spring" Symphony, the joyous masterpiece, radiating optimism, was premiered by none other than Felix Mendelssohn on the podium. Two short works inspired by poems complete the program. "This Midnight Hour," a mesmerizing, captivating piece by contemporary British composer Anna Clyne; and Sensemayá by Silvestre Revueltas, a brief work that first brought the Mexican composer to international attention, though not before his untimely death in 1940 at age 40. $48 - $151. 7:30 PM. 75 N 2nd St phoenixsymphony.org 11/21 - 11/23.*
