Holiday at the Acre Opening Weekend • 11/27 & 11/28

OPENING WEEKEND
Holiday at the Acre: Every great gathering place starts as an empty lot. Just off Roosevelt Street, between Central and First Avenue, there's an acre of downtown Phoenix between chapters. The building that stood there is coming down, and next year the Atari Hotel will rise in its place. For one season in between, the space is open. Intersection Development, the team behind the Atari Hotel, didn't want that season to go to waste. They brought a simple question to The Sunny Side Event Co.: what could this space be for the community, especially over the holidays? Holiday at the Acre is the answer. For four weekends, from the weekend after Thanksgiving through mid-December, this acre becomes a gathering place for all of Phoenix. Come share a meal and a drink with friends, gather around the fire pits, listen to live music, and shop a market of local makers. Take in work by Phoenix artists, roller skate under the lights, and make something with your own hands at a holiday workshop. It's a place built for slowing down: for staying a little longer than you planned, and for coming back the next weekend to see what's new. One acre. One season. All of Phoenix, slowing down together.
