Best Bets: Free Entertainment In Sf'S New Landing At Leidesdorff

Civic Center is not the only district in San Francisco looking to spruce up its entertainment value.

It's no secret that COVID, the fentanyl epidemic and shifting economic patterns have taken a toll on the city's downtown. Downtown SF, a private-public partnership aiming to revitalize the Financial District and downtown, has helped sponsor more lighting, public art, outdoor dining and outdoor events ranging from gatherings to yoga and fitness classes.

There's also a new entertainment zone called Landing at Leidesdorff, on Leidesdorff Street, near Washington and Battery streets. On Thursday, the site is hosting its second Theatre! On Thursday free outdoor movie, with a 6 p.m. screening of Ryan Coogler's blockbuster superhero film "Black Panther: Wakanda Forever" (the sequel to his "Black Panther" film).

Free popcorn, hot chocolate and coffee will be available.

Note: The event is free but with limited seating. Reserving a seat at downtownsf.org is a good idea. If you happen to be in the Leidesdorff Street area around lunchtime on Thursday, you can catch a free show from noon to 2 p.m. by Mikiya Matsuda, a steel guitarist who specializes in Swing-era Hawaiian music. Other free concerts, comedy shows and film screenings are planned.

You can find more information on the entertainment offerings and the group behind them at downtownsf.org.
