LTC's 70th Season is Underway

LONGMONT, CO – Excitement is building at Longmont Theatre Company as its milestone 70th Season gets underway. Following a successful reopening and growing community support, the company looks forward to one of its busiest seasons in recent years. Sets are built, rehearsals have begun, and more auditions are around the corner. There are plenty of ways for the community to be part of what's ahead.

The season kicks off with The Play That Goes Wrong, directed by Rob Mess and opening September 18. Rehearsals are underway and the elaborate set at the center of this award-winning comedy is already built and ready for the chaos to begin when everything that can go wrong does.

Later this month, auditions will be held for The Rocky Horror Show, directed by Bud Coleman and starring acclaimed local musicians Bonnie and Taylor Sims. Taylor is fresh off his 2026 Telluride Troubadour Contest win, while Bonnie tours nationally with Colorado bluegrass powerhouse Big Richard. Performers of all experience levels are encouraged to audition.

Longmont Theatre Company's Stages Academy youth theatre program is also back in full swing, with monthly meetings already underway as students prepare for another season of learning, performing, and building confidence through theatre.

The excitement continues throughout the season with Agatha Christie's suspenseful thriller The Unexpected Guest, the holiday favorite The Best Christmas Pageant Ever, and The SpongeBob Musical. The Best Christmas Pageant Ever offers a unique opportunity for families to perform together, featuring roles for both children and adults.

LTC is also seeking volunteers to help both onstage and behind the scenes. Whether your interests include costumes, set construction, lighting, ushering, concessions, or administration, there is a place for every skill and experience level.

"We have an exciting season ahead, and we'd love for the community to be part of it," said marketing director Heather May. "Whether you join us on stage, volunteer behind the scenes, or simply enjoy a performance from the audience, there's a place for all at Longmont Theatre Company."

Tickets for The Play That Goes Wrong are on sale now. Additional information about auditions, volunteering, youth programming, and the full 70th Season is available at longmonttheatre.org.
