FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Longmont Theatre Company Presents Neil Simon's The Odd Couple

February 6–8, 13–15, and 20–21 | Directed by Rob Mess

Longmont, Colorado -- Following a successful reopening and strong community interest that has led to multiple sold-out performances since summer, the Longmont Theatre Company is excited to present its upcoming production of Neil Simon's classic comedy The Odd Couple. Performances run February 6 through 8, 13 through 15, and 20 through 21. Directed by Rob Mess, the production delivers the sharp wit and unforgettable humor that have made the play a favorite for generations.

The show stars Chris Martinez as Oscar Madison and Scott Dunn as Felix Unger. Both are LTC veterans who bring deep experience and vibrant chemistry to these iconic roles. They are joined by an outstanding supporting cast including Rachel Ricca, Allegra Ludwig, Bunk Hess, Steve Rausch, Arnie Follendorf and Max Cabot.

Reflecting on the journey of this production, director Rob Mess shared, "After years of waiting, bringing The Odd Couple to life with this cast feels like a celebration of perseverance, community, and the joy of reclaiming our home together."

This production marks a significant milestone for the Longmont Theatre Company. The Odd Couple is the show that almost never reached the stage: It was shut down by COVID in 2020, revived in 2021 and shut down again, and is now finally being brought to life by the newly restored company. This long path to opening night symbolizes the theatre's remarkable rebirth and the dedication of all who championed its return.

With anticipation running high and seating limited, audiences are encouraged to purchase tickets early in order to secure the best seats for this long-awaited and wonderfully funny production. The Odd Couple promises an evening of laughter, warmth and exceptional performances. Don't miss the most anticipated production since the Longmont Theatre Company's reopening.
